

Method

This study focused on identifying GTP binding sites in transport proteins. This figure illustrates a flowchart of the study, which included three sub processes in each phase: data collection, feature set generation, and model evaluation. According to this flowchart, we developed a novel approach that is based on PSSM profiles and SAAPs for predicting GTP binding sites in transport proteins. The details of the proposed approach are described as follows.

